Housing and Local Government Minister Zuraida Kamaruddin said today that those who felt discriminated and marginalised for not obtaining low-cost housing (known by its Malay acronym "PPR") units lacked the right application guidelines.

Speaking to reporters after her working visit to a government low-cost housing project in Permatang Tok Suboh in Bukit Mertajam, Zuraida said these applicants who failed to secure units had applied via the Penang Regional Development Authority (Perda), a federal agency.
